

PUBLICATIONS

Novolex Holdings: A Rare Look at an RWI Claim Dispute

New York Law Journal

April 2024

In an article for the New York Law Journal titled, “Novolex Holdings: A Rare Look at an RWI Claim Dispute,” Schulte Roth & Zabel of counsel Howard B. Epstein, partner Theodore A. Keyes and associate Julia R. Cummings discuss representation and warranties insurance (RWI) in the context of Novolex Holdings v. Illinois Union Insurance, which provides important lessons for insurers and M&A practitioners.

Over the past decade, RWI has emerged as a critical tool to mitigate risk in M&A transactions. In fact, while RWI may initially have been seen as a novelty, it is now viewed as a relatively standard requirement in M&A transactions.

Related People

Howard
Epstein

Of Counsel
New York

Theodore Keyes

Partner
New York

Julia
Cummings

Associate
New York

Practices

ENVIRONMENTAL

INSURANCE

Attachments

↓ Download Article