

PUBLICATIONS

Court of Appeals Clarifies Anti-Subrogation Rule

New York Law Journal

March 31, 2017

Under the terms of many insurance policies, the insurer has a right of subrogation which permits the insurer to seek recovery from a third party who is responsible for the insured loss. The anti-subrogation rule, as one might expect from the title, imposes a limitation on the insurer's right to subrogate. In this article, partner Howard Epstein, special counsel Theodore Keyes and former Schulte lawyer Sami Groff discuss a recent Court of Appeals' decision that clarifies the scope of the anti-subrogation rule.

Related People

Howard
Epstein

Of Counsel
New York

Theodore Keyes

Partner
New York

Practices

INSURANCE

ENVIRONMENTAL

LITIGATION

Attachments

[!\[\]\(9c2e8d1b5bd77cb5c9f83b7a9cff79fd_img.jpg\) Download Article](#)