2022 The International Litigation Finance Forum

The continued growth of the industry has caught the attention of institutional investors, hedge funds, private equity and venture capital firms who recognize the untapped potential in the market...even during an economic downturn.

More and more law firms are making the most of opportunities in the space and are increasingly using litigation finance as a form of risk management, cash flow and profit generation, but for the market to continue to grow, it must confront ongoing concerns around disclosure and transparency.

With new players continuing to enter the market, and important ongoing updates around disclosures, market innovations, international case funding, regulations and compliance, this one-day summit is the premier platform for relationship building, thought leadership and business development in the litigation funding space.
